The University of Kent’s Centre for Medieval and Early Modern Studies (MEMS) is an internationally-recognised centre for excellence in the interdisciplinary study of Medieval and Early Modern periods.

Our MA programme attracts students from across the world and provides intensive training in key research skills such as Latin and Palaeography, and our thriving community of research students work alongside leading academics in their respective fields. Based in the historic city of Canterbury, our students have access to a unique range of historical, literary and material evidence.

Taught degree (full or part-time)
• MA in Medieval and Early Modern Studies

Research degrees (full or part-time)
• MA or PhD in Medieval and Early Modern Studies

@mems_ukc
CentreForMedievalAndEarlyModernStudies
www.kent.ac.uk/mems

NEW CANTERBURY/ PARIS MA
The full-time taught MA can now be studied between Canterbury and Paris, spending a term living and studying in each location.